

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A system and method to diffuse optimized libraries via a network. An optimized library including at least one optimized routine is received by a processing system via a network. The optimized routine is provided for use by an application executing on the processing system to interact with a hardware entity of the processing system.